Randall Redding Named President of the Georgia Chapter of The Associated General Contractors of America, Inc.

Redding is the founder and CEO of R. K. Redding Construction

DESTIN, Fla. (June 9, 2014) – R. K. Redding Construction (RKR), a full service, multi-disciplinary construction management and general construction contracting firm, is excited to announce that its President & CEO Randall Redding has ascended to the presidency of AGC Georgia, the statewide Chapter of The Associated General Contractors of America, Inc. (AGC of America) at its annual convention.

Outgoing President Dave Cyr officially passed the gavel to Redding, at a ceremony during the convention, who will lead the Chapter from 2014-15.

“I am humbled by the opportunity to work with my esteemed colleagues at ACG during the next year,” said Redding. “I look forward to working closely with the AGC Board to accomplishing great things.”

Redding started the business in 1991, when he decided to make a difference in his hometown of Bremen, Ga. Today, RKR is an established general contractor and construction management firm that works throughout the southeast.

AGC Georgia is a statewide chapter of The Associated General Contractors of America, Inc. For 86 years, the chapter has operated as a highly-regarded professional trade association whose members represent over 500 of the top general contractors, residential/light commercial builders, construction managers, design builders, municipal-utility contractors, heavy and highway contractors, specialty contractors, service providers, and suppliers comprising the state's commercial construction industry. Collectively, AGC brings a strong, influential and single voice to the industry.
